

Robin Foust is an award-winning health scientist, analyst, and architect in the field of health and human performance. Robin is the recipient of several leadership awards and recognition for health and financial outcomes achieved by her clients -- including as principal designer of programs receiving; 2 C. Everett Koop awards for her pioneering work in maternity and condition management, a Leadership Award in the field of Wellness, and awards in the field of Health and Human Performance for getting optimal outcomes.

Known for creative problem solving, the company she leads (myCatalyst) turns data analytics into meaningful and actionable reporting. Foust's solutions help achieve best population health and productivity outcomes for employers served, one population at a time – one individual at a time.

Robin is published, a thought leader in healthcare and a highly rated speaker on various healthcare topics. Robin's publications include but not limited to: Engagement Strategies in Health & Disease Management: Best Practice in Boosting Participation; Special Report on Best Practices for Evaluating Healthcare Outcomes published by Dorland Health, and more – with copies of articles and books, and more -- available upon request.