Description:

Everyone should have access to the right medicine, at the right time, at the right cost; and they shouldn't have to navigate a cumbersome and daunting system to access it.

DisclosedRx's vision is that truthfulness and innovation will drive greater access to prescription medications for their members at a lower net cost to their client, as well as make them the easiest PBM to partner with.

Claim Assertion for Validation

DisclosedRx offers a fully disclosed pharmacy benefit service to employers. DisclosedRx is contractually obligated to only derive revenue from their clients, allowing them to optimize pharmacy spend without worrying about commitments to the supply chain. DisclosedRx does not earn money by reselling drugs at a higher price than it obtains them (“spread pricing”); it credits all rebates and supply chain credits to the payer; and it charges only one administrative fee. DisclosedRx systems and processes provide claims processing oversight that incorporate active risk management of pharma spend. The risk management programs include mitigation strategies for specialty and high-cost brand medicines. No allegiance to the supply chain allows DisclosedRx to pursue all possible channels for lower cost medications. Payers not only have clear data about their benefits but also gain the advantage of lower costs.

Method / Calculation / Examples

DisclosedRx's contract was compared to a model transparent contract developed by Validation Institute's consulting PharmD. The model contract standards address definitions of terms, access to data, and payment arrangements. Each contract provision was assessed for its adherence to transparency principles, its impact on the payer's final cost and its delivery of the data to the payer.

Findings & Validation

DisclosedRx met the standards for the model transparent contract.

Limitations
