

Simon, a tech industry veteran, brings over three decades of product leadership to Kaia Health. As an athlete and parents of athletes, he is passionate about the importance of musculoskeletal care and the potential for digital therapeutics to transform outcomes and affordability for patients globally. Simon has served as a Head of Product for high-growth companies including RocketFuel, Yume and Ceres Imaging and is an active advisor for multiple start-ups. His background also includes product leadership roles at Facebook, Adobe, SGI, and Autonomy. His values for product development include accountability, simplicity, delight, and cultivating deep shared context.